Revolt of Maximus in Britain; flight and death of Gratian

4TH Cent AD.

after Roman Conversion to Christianity. the nascent Catholic Church set on abolishing all pagan practices. The Church established its own January 1 holy day - the Feast of Christ's Circumcision which is still observed by Catholics, Lutherans, Episcopalians, and many Eastern Orthodox sects.

Huns and Alans were sent to Ratis to defend it against the Alamanni & unthunzi

On his death bed ULFILAS declared his Creed "there is one eternal, unbegotten, and invisible God, who before time existed alone. Within time he created the Son, the only-begotten God. He is the creator of all things; the Lord of the Holy Spirit whom the Father created through the Son before all things. The Holy Spirit is obedient and subject to the Son like the Son to the Father."

with large-scale participation by the people of Constantinople and perhaps also by the authorities, ULFIAS was carried to his grave. His cause was doomed, for the synod followed the second ecumenical council in condemning Arianism. But the 2nd canon of the general synod of 381 had already decreed that the "churches of God among the barbarian peoples... are to be governed in the manner that already existed among their forefathers - and that is where the matter rested

383-7392

The Princess GATHA traveled from Transdanubian Götting into the Roman Empire and back again. The Gothic lady, accompanied by her daughter with the Latin name DULCILLA brought relics of martyrs DEYZICUS and then returned home with her companion Wella, while her daughter remained behind. Upon their return, Wella was stoned to death by Pagan Götting. The Tervingi north of Danube were still hostile towards Christians. Meanwhile the Goths in and around Constantinople grew in size, and the newly raised Eastern Army consisted increasingly of Goths.

Ulfilas's successor was the GOTHO-PARYGIAN SELENAS. But 1st Cn. Frutiger, whose bands tried in vain to force the Gothic minors to join them. The "peace loving and unwarlike" Balkan shepherds refused to leave their homeland, indeed, they offered refuge to newcomers tired of wandering around JORDANES was a Balkan Goth the Catholic writers of the early 5th century turned Ulfilas into a supporter of Frutigen & an enemy of A+H ANARK Although Frutigen's Anarchism was not entirely in line with Olaf's theology, the bishop's messianic boasts were vital to Frutigen if he wanted to live up to his promise that the Teutings would accept the imperial creed.

383-392

The Gothic lady GAATHA traveled in the company of her daughter DULCILLA and the Goth WELCA from BOTHIA into the Roman Empire, having 1st transferred "dominium" to her son ARIMIR. The purpose of the trip was to transfer the remains of 26 martyrs to CYZICUS, where Roman Arians were still to be found. the Gothic martyrs who had been burned to death by the Chieftain WINGORIC - the "colleague" of GAATHA's deceased husband - had been Arians and had met their death, between 367 & 378.

After accomplishing her mission, GATHA returned home; she left her daughter behind in CYZICUS, informed her son that he should pick her up at the border, and went together with WALLA into old GOTHIA. There her companion was stoned to death. The murderers must have still been pagans of the ATHANARIC' type.
